PROPOSAL TO ELECT WOMEN FAVORED HERE

Constitutional Convention and Three Amendments All Receive Majorities in Columbia.

SOLDIER BONUS IN DOUBT

Central Votes Against All Except Amendment to Pay Interest From License Fees.

Although majorities against the proposed constitutional convention and the constitutional amendments were voted in many rural precincts, all four propositions were given majorities in the county as a whole as a result of the vote in the four precincts in Columbia. In the rural precincts, a very light vote was cast, but in Columbia the vote was nearly one-third of the normal poll.

That there was a great difference of opinion on all the propositions is shown in a comparison of the votes in the various precincts. On the constitution convention proposition, for example, the vote in the fourth precinct of Columbia was 489 to 21, while in the Hinton precinct it was 9 to 21 against. In the Sapp precinct, the vote was evenly divided, being 18 to 18. On the soldier bonus amendment, the vote in the fourth precinct of Columbia was 301 to 200, in the Sapp precinct, 3 to 33, and in the Hinton precinct, 10 to 20. The only one of the four propositions voted upon favorably in the Sapp precinct was the amendment providing for the payment of the interest on the $60,000,000 road bond issue from the automobile license fees.

At Pratherville and Deer Park, majorities were voted in favor of all the propositions, while at Wilton the majorities were against the propositions. It is generally conceded, however, that the large majorities in favor of the propositions voted in the four precincts of Columbia will easily overcome the adverse vote in the scattered rural precincts where the constitutional convention and the three amendments were opposed.

The constitutional convention, for instance, received an unofficial majority of 1,074 in the four precincts of the city. The soldier bonus amendment, however, only received a majority of about 400 in the city. The majority in favor of the amendment enabling women to hold state offices was nearly 700 in the city, while the majority for the amendment authorizing the payment of the interest of the $60,000,000 road bond issue from the automobile license fees was nearly 1,000 in Columbia.

There were 355 votes cast in the first precinct of Columbia; 261 in the second precinct; 271 in the third, and 510 in the fourth, a total of 1,397 votes for the city, according to unofficial tabulations.

The only amendment on which there is any question of receiving a majority in Boone County is the soldier bonus amendment, which received the smallest majority of any of the four propositions in Columbia.

Only a few returns from the thirty-four precincts of the county were available even late this afternoon, and definite figures on the result of the election in the county will not be available until late tomorrow or early Friday morning, according to C. W. Davis, clerk of the county court, who will open the poll books at that time.

A majority against all except one of the four propositions was recorded in Centralia, the amendment to pay the interest on the road bond issue from the automobile license fees being the only one to be voted upon favorably. On the constitutional convention, the vote was 63 to 208 against the proposal. On the amendment enabling women to hold state offices, the vote was 97 to 175, and on the soldier bonus amendment it was 87 to 190. The vote on the bond issue interest amendment was 151 to 122, a majority of 29 in favor of the proposition.

TO OBTAIN NEW CONSTITUTION

Women Will Not Hold State Offices—Soldiers' Bonus Item Carries.

By United Press. ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—Two constitutional amendments and the proposal to call a state convention to draft a new constitution were approved in yesterday's special election, incoming returns today indicated. The amendment giving women the right to hold office in the state was voted down according to unofficial returns from all parts of the state. The soldier bonus item carried by a large majority.

St. Louis approved all proposals with the exception of the women's proposition. Kansas City gave an overwhelming affirmative majority on the proposition to call a state convention. The constitutional amendments also won there.

Butler County rejected the constitutional convention proposition and the one giving women the right to hold office in the state. Franklin County beat the women's item by one vote. The constitution proposition failed to win in Kennett. In Hannibal the bonus carried 8 to 1. Clarksville defeated the bonus by 3 votes.

DR. COLE'S SON SETS SPEED RECORD ON BENCH

Judge R. S. Cole Has Tried 6 Cases of National Interest in 4 Months in Oklahoma.

Judge Redmond S. Cole of Pawnee, Okla., son of Dr. J. B. Cole of Columbia, has just achieved the record of trying more really big cases in the same length of time than any man who ever occupied a like judicial position in Oklahoma, if not in the United States. Judge Cole, a 1906 graduate of the University of Missouri, is one of the four jurists for the twenty-first judicial district of Oklahoma comprising Tulsa and Pawnee counties.

Judge Cole went on the district bench a little more than two years ago and up till the last two months he heard all of the criminal cases and part of the civil cases tried in Pawnee and Tulsa counties. During the last four months he has tried six cases of almost national reputation and last Monday began the seventh when Ben Waddell, suspended chief of police of Sand Springs, faced a grand jury accusation in connection with the recent race riot.

Judge Cole began setting a mark for other judges to shoot at in April of this year when Eddie Shouquette, first of the alleged Sperry bank robbers, went to trial. Frank Freeling, alleged leader of the Sperry gang, came next followed closely by Al Christman, a purported member. Calvin O. Brady, who was an undercover man for the police department, caused a long trial in connection with stolen automobiles. Brady had hardly been convicted when the case of the murder of John Devereux came up and Goldie Gordon and Mrs. Jesse James were tried and acquitted. This was followed by the case of Chief of Police Gustafson, and the trial of Chief of Police Waddell began Monday.

In the Devereux case Judge Cole surprised the lawyers by having his voluminous instructions complete within thirty minutes after they had finished their evidence. This was done by taking down every legal citation the lawyers read during the trial and reviewing all these at night when there was not a night session of the court. He keeps up on all legal points as the trial progresses and writes his instructions at night during the trials so that they are ready to submit to the opposing counsel when the trial ends.

Special to The Missourian. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 3.—The board of curators of the University of Missouri this afternoon selected Dr. J. C. Jones, vice-president of the University, to be acting president until such time as a permanent president is chosen.

TO RELOCATE SOME OF ROAD

Will Spend $16,000 on Columbia-Jefferson City Highway.

The Columbia-Jefferson City Highway route will be re-located in several places to avoid grades and gullies along the last three miles of the south part of the road in Boone County. Approximately $16,000 will be spent on grading and improving this section of the route, by the State Highway Department, according to a letter received recently by C. W. Davis, county clerk from the department.

Work will be begun, the letter states, as soon as rights-of-way have been obtained for the re-locations.

Blanks for conveyances of rights-of-way are being distributed by the County Court for signature of property owners along the proposed route, according to J. T. Rowland, judge of the county court. As soon as the conveyances are signed advertisements for contracts to build the road will be run according to Judge Rowland.

The Good Roads Law of 1919, under which the road will be improved, allows $1,200 per mile to be spent. As the remainder of the road to Ashland is in very good condition and the road from Ashland to Columbia is a privately owned thoroughfare, most of the money to be spent on the road in Boone County from Columbia south will be on the last three miles to the south as that is considered the worst stretch of road along the route.

The road has been designated as a state highway for more than a year by the state highway department but until now no attempt at improving it has been made.

Commercial Situation Improving—Markets Show More Activity

Increasing wool and cotton consumption in manufactures with a steady improvement in car loadings are the most hopeful indications in the commercial situation at this midyear period, according to a digest of the trade conditions issued by the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis.

Stocks of hides and skins are increasing in spite of more activity in leather manufacturing lines. The output of the products of iron, steel, copper, zinc, tin and lead continues to decline.

Merchandise exports during the month of June were valued at $340,000,000, which exceeded the previous month by $10,000,000. Gold imports during June amounted to $44,000,000 with exports of only $774,000, leaving a gold movement in our favor for June of $43,000,000.

The decline in failures for June brings the total to the smallest number since last November and liabilities were also the smallest reported since last November. There has been a consistent and steady decrease in business failures so far this year, the month of April being the only exception.

They visited, in order, the experiment field south of Redwood Gymnasium, the cattle barns, poultry building, sheep and hog barns, the dairy, rotation plots and the agriculture engineering building.

Some of the women visited the Home Economics Building and looked over the sewing work being done there. They also made a special trip to the poultry and dairy buildings.

The roads were muddy, between here and the county line, the visitors said, but the road from the line on to Fulton is in good shape. Most of the crowd came from Fulton, but other parts of Callaway County were well represented.

C. E. Neff of Fulton, county agent of Callaway County, was active in making plans for the picnic.

Sam B. Shirley, assistant to Dean Mumford, who was in charge of today's picnic, said that Cole County farmers will attend a picnic here tomorrow if there is no rain tonight.

PASTORS SAY CHURCH IS NOT LOSING HOLD

Think One Who Charges Church Is Losing Grip Should Consult Lifer Specialist.

"WORLD'S MORE MORAL"

Millions in Gifts and Constant Good Results From Work Prove Value of Religion.

There is never a time when some writer will not cry that the church is losing its grip, according to the pastors and church leaders of Columbia. The survival of the church, in their opinion, has been the miracle of the ages, and the church is no more on trial today than it was fifty years ago.

"The need of religion in the life of the individual is basic; the church provides this need," said the Rev. Joseph D. Randolph. "We might as well say that people will stop eating as to talk about the church's losing its grip. It will never lose its grip so long as it holds Christ to the front."

All over this state and the country the church of today and its problems are being discussed. The year 1921 marks a "crisis of the ages" according to Ernest L. Tustin in a speech before a recent convention of Northern Baptists in session at Des Moines. As evidence of such a crisis he cited the "great extravagances of living, the deplorable lowering of morals in our social life, the moral degeneration and let-down in habits of our young people, and the non-church-going and non-religious people."

A ministerial alliance, moreover, has been formed at Clarence, Mo., to combat joy riding and short skirts, say the churchmen.

"I do not interpret all this," said B. F. Hoffman, professor of Germanic languages in the University of Missouri, "as an indication that the church is losing its grip. It is simply an evidence of the encroachment of the world upon social and political life, and this encroachment gives the church, all the broader opportunity. The church founded upon the Word of God is not on trial nor is it losing its grip."

"But, alas, too many churches are not founded upon the Word of God. They are giving way to worldliness. It is these churches that give the appearance that the modern church is losing ground."

"The world is more moral," said G. D. Edwards, dean of the Bible College, "than it was fifty years ago. When I was a boy I lived in a section of the country where not a year passed that someone was not killed in a drunken brawl at a country dance. Nothing like that happens today. When I was a boy the farmers sat on the rail fence outside the church house and laughed and hurrahed during the sermon. Today the young people are not even allowed to sit in automobiles outside the church and talk."

"The man who thinks that the church is losing its grip had better go to the doctor and have his liver cleaned out. He is either dyspeptic or else his memory is so faulty that he has lost his sense of perspective."

"Probably there is a smaller attendance at churches, but we must remember that there are more churches now than there were fifty years ago. Fifty years ago there were few telephones, newspapers, and practically no libraries. The meeting at church was a social gathering; people went to find out what their neighbors had been doing during the week. The motive for churchgoing has changed. Men are drawn to church now from purely a religious fervor."

"All this cry about the church's losing its grip is absurd," said the Rev. T. W. Young. "Never before in the history of the church has it received the confidence and the approval that it is receiving now. It is true that wrong conditions exist today, but the church is not responsible for them. In truth, it is the only institution that is trying to right these conditions. There has been no time in the history of the church when it has not had to combat the wrong."

"We were told by many during the war that the churches would have to reconstruct their theology to hold the respect of the returned soldiers. These statements have proved untrue. The leading political and social leaders from Lord French to Henry Watterson have since declared that the only hope of the world is the gospel of the churches."

"As to the theology of the churches, it is never a question of whether it is new or old. The only question is: Is that theology true? Does it conform to the Bible? If it does conform to the Bible, it can stand the test in spite of its critics."

"In the last three years the members of all denominations have been pouring into church treasuries millions of dollars to carry on the work of these churches. Do people give their money to institutions that are losing ground? This cry that the church is losing its grip is mere bunkum."
